

EXPLORE THE ADIRONDACKS | ADD COLOR WITH FURNITURE AND ACCESSORIES

Log & Timber[®] STYLE

home of the year

BEST BUILDING AND DECORATING IDEAS

August 2004 $3.95

DISPLAY UNTIL SEPTEMBER 7

A Wiesner Publication
logandtimberstyle.com

DISCOVER A HISTORIC RANCH

SECRETS TO COLLECTING
BLUE GLASSWARE

L&S Snapshot

Imagine walking out to this view on a bright summer morning. It's a reality for Brent and Karen Backman, a busy couple who built this Jackson Hole, Wyoming, home on 35 pristine acres. Located on the east bank of the Snake River with panoramic views of the Teton Range, the Backmans get to enjoy all the outdoor sights and delights the West has to offer. This stone patio is placed perfectly to take in this luxurious view. Two twig chairs reflect the rustic landscape and create a luxurious spot for lively conversation or quiet contemplation. The home, which actually consists of three buildings—the main house, guest house and workshop—was designed by architect Eliot Goss and built by Teton Heritage Builders. Photograph by W. Garth Dowling

POINT of VIEW